Dept. of the Center to Promote Creativity in Medical Education, Kochi Medical School

Details:

Dr. Richard Kasuya, Associate Dean for Medical Education, and six 1st year medical students from the University of Hawaii's medical school will demonstrate small group, "Hawaii style" problem-based learning (PBL). Separate demonstrations will be offered for both faculty and medical students.

Following a brief introduction, a live demonstration of "Step 1" of the PBL process will illustrate active-style tutoring and student participation that lead to identification and discussion of hypotheses, "need to know" items, and "learning issues." The demonstration will be followed by a brief example of a student presenting a learning issue, and time for questions and discussion.

Note:

- There is no tuition or registration for attendees.
- Instruction will be in English.
